The dairy and poultry special train, under the direction of Dr. W. P. Cutler, dairy and pure food commissioner, will arrive in Maryville this evening at 6:05 o'clock on the Burlington and will remain here until 9 o'clock, when they leave for St. Joseph.

At 7:30 o'clock this evening at the Business college auditorium the lectures on dairying and poultry will be given, after which State Highway Engineer Curtis Hill will exhibit a number of stereoscopic views of good roads construction work, and will give an address. A number of the road overseers from over the county are expected to attend the meeting.

On Saturday morning the road overseers from over the county have been called by County Highway Engineer J. E. Reese to meet in the Business college auditorium for the annual meeting, as authorized by law. The meeting will be attended by the county court and other road enthusiasts, and Curtis Hill will be the principal speaker at the meeting.

The dairy and poultry train was at Barnard this afternoon, and passed through Maryville about 2:30 o'clock, when Paul Sisson, Anderson Craig, Prof. John Cameron and Will Phares joined them and accompanied them on their trip to Pickering and Hopkins. They will return from Hopkins to Maryville for this evening's meeting.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

Big heads are worn mostly at home. When a man threatens to kiss a girl he runs a big risk of her getting indignant if he doesn't.

It takes a man to feel important because he saw the president come off a ferryboat in a closed carriage.

If lying weren't so foolish, maybe there wouldn't be so many liars.

It's better to be able to pay your bills than to be a model citizen.

A woman who can flirt with her own husband never has to with any other man.

It is a good deal easier to learn how to run an automobile than to pay the cost of it.

Every man thinks he knows good coffee so well that if he only pays enough for it, no matter what it is, it's right.

Here for Meeting.

J. B. Sly of Rockport, a member of the road committee of the state board of agriculture is in the city Friday to attend the meeting this evening, when Curtis Hill, state highway engineer, will talk along road lines.

Mrs. G. H. Leech went to Pickering Friday noon to visit relatives.

HOUSE PASSED MISSOURI MEMBER'S BILL AND SENATE MAY.

THREW A FIT OVER SUGAR

Tariff Bill and Bill to Tax Incomes of Individuals Produced Commotion in Republican Ranks.

By VAN CLEVE.

Washington, March 5.—The weather man is lobbying for the bill to change the date of presidential inaugurations. A bill is before the house to change the date from March 4 to the latter part of April. Of the thousands who are attracted here every four years it is estimated that scores lose their lives from exposure. Next March a new president will be inaugurated, and the weather man is giving a practical demonstration of what to expect. Sunday was cold and damp and on Monday, the 4th, a heavy snow fell and the streets were a mass of ice and sleet. To make such weather doubly disagreeable is the fact that there is no law in the District of Columbia to compel residents to remove the snow from the sidewalks. Some of them, who have servants or strong wives, do have the snow shoveled off. Others do not, and a little snow well tramped and frozen by turns and becomes an exasperating nuisance on the shady side of the streets until warm weather.

Representative Booher secured the passage Monday of his bill "to limit the effect of the regulation of interstate commerce between the states in goods, wares, and merchandise wholly or in part manufactured by convict labor or in any prison or reformatory."

The bill is designed to protect free labor from competition with prison labor by making prison made goods subject to the laws of the states into which they are shipped. The products of prison labor in the matter of clothing, shoes and other articles of general use have become a serious menace to honest labor, and such a law is regarded as greatly needed. Mr. Booher, now having secured its passage through the house, hopes to see it pass the senate and become a law.

The Democratic house leaders brought in two bills Saturday that threw a lot of people into a series of conniption fits. One was to place sugar on the free list and the other was to provide for an excise tax on individual incomes in excess of $5,000 per year. There was an immediate roar that could be heard all the way from New York to Washington. Only a small per centage of the sugar used in this country is produced here, and the tariff now paid on the imports yields an annual revenue of about $53,000,000. This is paid entirely by the people, poor and rich alike, as the sugar trust has been enabled to manipulate prices so as to cover not only the tariff but an enormous profit besides. It is estimated that the removal of the tariff will reduce the price of sugar 1 1/2 cents per pound. In the United States every man, woman and child eats on an average eighty pounds of sugar per year, or 400 pounds to a family of five. The difference would therefore amount to a saving of $6 per family. The cane growers of Louisiana and the best sugar producers of Colorado declare the loss of the duty would be disastrous to their states, but Mr. Underwood insists that they will not be injured.

The excise bill, which is written as a companion to the corporation tax law now in operation, is designed to produce revenue sufficient to make up for any loss resulting from the sugar bill. It proposes to tax incomes on the excess above $5,000 per year. The theory of an income tax is just as it shifts a reasonable proportion of the burdens of sustaining the government from those least able to pay to those who enjoy the greatest benefits and are best able to pay. The tax in the proposed bill is very light, as it only seeks to tax incomes in excess of $5,000 on the excess at the rate of 1 per cent per annum. Thus a man with an income of $6,000 would only pay $10. Yet the papers backed by the rich and catering to the big interests are denouncing it and everybody concerned. It will pass the house easily but will likely have rough sailing in the senate. There are enough Democrats and insurgents, who are believed favorable to an income tax, to pass that through the senate, but it is doubtful if the sugar bill can pass that body. Perhaps it will lead to a substantial reduction in that body if they do not permit the entire removal of the duty.

One of the interesting features of the past few days has been the party of strikers from Lawrence, Mass., here to testify before the committee holding a bill to investigate the strike. Phone on page 2.

News of Society and Womens' Clubs

Met at Farrar Home.

Mrs. J. C. Farrar and daughter, Miss Eva Farrar, entertained the M. M. M. club at their home, north of town, Wednesday afternoon. The roll call was responded to with current events. The members then took up their needlework for the afternoon while Mrs. W. O. Garrett read a paper on "Fillet Crochet," and also illustrated the work. The rest of the afternoon was spent socially and a two-course luncheon was served by the hostesses. Those present were Mrs. M. A. Nicholas and daughters, Misses Bess and Wilma Nicholas; Mrs. Halbert Catterson, Mrs. L. H. Frazee, Mrs. J. P. Frazee, Mrs. George Stafford and Mrs. M. D. Kemp.

Society Elected Officers.

The Woman's Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church held its annual election of officers Thursday afternoon, at its regular monthly meeting, at the home of Mrs. J. K. Sawyers. Mrs. S. E. Farmer was elected president. Mrs. S. G. Gilliam vice president, Mrs. J. A. Ford secretary. Mrs. Charles Wadley treasurer. Over thirty members were present and added to these were a number of the members of the Rural Missionary society of this church. The rural society had intended to meet Thursday afternoon with the members of the town society, but owing to the bad condition of the roads all the members could not be present. The devotional service was led by Mrs. Fred Kurtz. "Africa" was the subject of the afternoon study, conducted by Mrs. Charles Jackson. During the social hour Mrs. Sawyers was assisted in serving a luncheon to her guests by Mrs. W. H. Brown, Mrs. Leona Giffin, Miss Elizabeth Sawyers and Miss Clara Neff.

Planned for Easter Thank Offering.

At the meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the First M. E. church, at the home of Mrs. M. M. Rittenour Thursday afternoon, plans were made for the society's Easter thank offering service, which will be held Sunday morning, April 7, at the First M. E. church. Miss Fannie A. Perkins, a missionary from Thandau, Burma, who is now at her home in Indianapolis, Ind., on leave of absence, will deliver an address at the 11 o'clock service. Miss Perkins is a very pleasing speaker and the society is looking forward to her coming in happy anticipation. She is supported in the foreign field by the Des Moines branch, of which the Maryville society is a member. Several other matters were attended to by the society, among which were the reports of the secretaries. The president, Mrs. W. B. Christie, then took up the afternoon's program, after leading the devotional service. Mrs. W. O. Garrett reading the Scripture lesson, and Mrs. Sarah Crosby leading the prayer. The subject "Mohammedanism" was discussed by all present, and was an interesting study. The program closed with a piano number by Miss Eva Rittenour. During the social hour refreshments were served by Mrs. O. C. Hanna, Mrs. S. H. Kemp, Mrs. S. J. DeArmond and Mrs. J. S. Ford.

C. W. B. M. Earned Dollars.

The C. W. B. M. of the First Christian church held a special meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. O. W. Swinford—a meeting that will not be forgotten soon by the members of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions of that church. Several weeks ago the members of this organization voted to earn $1 each for a special missionary cause, and at a called meeting in March told how she earned her dollar. Mrs. J. R. Brink was made chairman of the "enthusiasm" committee, and the great success of the undertaking has been largely due to her untiring efforts. One woman was very much worried as to how she was going to earn her dollar, and finally asked the advice of her husband so repeatedly that he handed her a dollar and told her she would earn it if she would only keep still and never say another word about it. Of course, she was rendered speechless—to be given a dollar like that—and she only regained her speech in time to tell it at Wednesday's meeting. One woman was her husband's chiropractor for a dollar; another pressed her husband's clothes; another did the family washing twice; some sold eggs, butter, bread; one bought eggs when the price was low and packed them, and then sold them to herself for the family use when the price was at its highest; another took in sewing. But it was agreed that Mrs. Henry Westfall's experience capped the climax. It was in reality a confession, and was given in a most feeling manner by the confessor in these words: "How could I a dollar gain? This problem gave me the greatest pain. I planned all my own work so do. That I might save a coin or two. (Continued on page 2.)"

WAS NOT REVOKED

COUNTY COURT WOULD NOT REVOKE LICENSE TO JOHN KANE.

2 AGAINST AND 1 FOR Court Made Order Friday and Probably No Further Action Will Be Taken.

The county court declined Friday morning to revoke the dramshop license of John Kane as issued to him a month ago.

Judges Wm. Blackford and J. O. Thompson were the judges that were in favor of not revoking the license, and Judge Thornhill dissented, being in favor of revoking the license.

Judges Blackford and Thompson stated that from what law they had looked up and from conferring with lawyers they took the action they did because they think the charges against Kane, keeping a disorderly house and other violations of the law, have not been shown during the time of the present license. Judge Thornhill contends that alleged violations of the law can be shown back of the time of the present license, and if proven is sufficient to revoke the license.

It is thought that the "drys" will take no further action against John Kane until he applies for a new license, as his present one will run out in July.

The case came up before the county court on a motion of G. J. Moore, W. W. Glass and H. W. Hull, who claim that Kane has not at all times kept an orderly house, and that two of his barkeepers have been convicted of selling liquor to minors. A number of witnesses were examined, after which the attorneys made their arguments. The court took the matter under advisement Thursday evening and did not announce their decision until 11 o'clock Friday morning.

DEATH OF MISS ALEXANDER.

Pickering Young Woman Succumbs to Attack of Pneumonia.

Miss Cora Ethel Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander of Pickering, died at 4 o'clock Friday morning, March 8, at the family home, after a week's illness of pneumonia.

The funeral services will be held in the Methodist Episcopal church of Pickering, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. H. J. Ducker, to conduct the service. Interment will take place in the Oak Hill cemetery at Maryville.

Miss Alexander was born in Nodaway county, Missouri, on the 26th day of December, 1875, and had always lived in the home where she died. She had been a consistent member of the Methodist church since she was 14 years old. She was an enthusiastic member of the Rebekah lodge at Pickering and had served as district deputy. She was held in high esteem by all who knew her. She is survived by her parents, several brothers and a sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Eversole and Mr. Eversole's sister, Miss Maud Eversole, left Thursday evening for New York and other eastern markets to buy goods for the Eversole dry goods store. They will be gone two weeks.

BLUE AND GRAY MEET.

Score 12 to 13 for the Gray at High School Gymnasium.

No, not the blue and the gray we are accustomed to think of, but two high school basketball teams who call themselves those historic appellations met in deadly conflict in the high school gymnasium Thursday evening. Quite a number of rosters were out for both teams, and the boys played the best game they knew. The teams were about evenly matched, and it would have been hard to have placed odds on either, but luck decided for the grays by a 12 to 13 score. Individual stars were lacking on both sides, but each had what is much more essential, namely, team work, and that spirit which makes you pass the ball to the man a little nearer the basket, instead of taking a long, risky shot yourself.

The line-up of the game:

The Blues—Taylor, Robinson, Condon, forwards; Willson, center; Blagg, Miller, guards.

The Grays—Gronewy, Montgomery, forwards; V. Lyle, center; A. Lyle, Garton, guards.

Points made—Field goals, Willson, Robinson 2, Taylor 2, Gronewy 3, V. Lyle, Montgomery. Free throws, Robinson, Condon, V. Lyle 3.

There are now a large number of rural schools in Nodaway county that have been approved as first class schools.

I cooked and stewed and fried and baked

Until my back and stomach ached.

I swept and dusted, washed and scrubbed;

I ripped and sewed and made each dud.

Each week my husband's neck I shaved—

This deed a nickel always saved.

But that five cents, I'm grieved to say.

Remains in that man's jeans today.

I saw my finish. By no turn

Could I an honest dollar earn.

Now are you do condemn me quite.

For stepping from the path of right.

Remember my temptation great.

Perhaps it decreed by fate

That Mrs. Brink should lure me on

This filthy lure to perdition.

She called me daily on the phone;

She kept me always on the run;

Her voice did haunt me in the night.

Until my reason left me quite.

No matter where I went or turned

I heard this: "Got your dollar earned?"

My desperation you can see.

No other plan was left for me.

And so, one night, when all was still.

Except, perhaps, the whisperwill.

His cash I saw him count with care.

My husband had retired to rest.

No fears disturbed his placid breast.

Then raise the pillow, quite it there.

His snores soon showed quite plain

To me

That he from earthly care was free.

And you can guess what I did next—

It wouldn't do for Sunday's text.

I fixed myself, so I could face

The dreaded Brink at any place.

As for Henry, he can holler.

I relieved him of this silver dollar.

The Stone Gods

By Temple Bailey

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

The Garden of the Stone Gods was set in the midst of a high city, but so high were the walls that surrounded it that it was cut off from the sight of outsiders, and the noise of traffic came faintly to the ears of Rosamond, as she sat day after day by the fountain, working fairy webs of lace on a cushion, as she had been taught in a convent far across the seas.

So many years had she dwelt in the convent that she seemed less an American girl than a foreigner, and now that she was buried here in this strange old garden, she seemed to live in a dream life far removed from that of the girls, who, on the other side of the walls, went back and forth on gay modern quests of shopping and motoring, golfing and riding.

Once an airship had whizzed overhead, and the beat of its motors had come down to them faintly.

Rosamond's uncle had looked up into the skies and had said, fiercely, "Can we never get away from modern horrors?"

But Rosamond had looked up at the big airship, sailing over their heads like a huge silver dragonfly, and then down at the impassible stone gods which surrounded the fountain, and had sighed.

Rosamond hated the stone gods, and she yearned inexpressibly for the life that other girls led.

One day outside the walls she heard a voice singing. It was a man's voice, strong and sweet, and the song was a love song.

In her quiet garden, Rosamond had heard little of love. Her uncle had never married; he hated women.

The song, as it floated out on the spring air, seemed a call to Rosamond to come out and be free.

So she left her lace pillow and ran to the end of the garden, and climbed from the stone bench to the low fix. Do you think there's anyone in there who can help me out? I'm a doctor, and I've got to get to a patient as soon as possible.

"Oh," said Rosamond quickly, "I'll see." She ran at once to her uncle's study. There she told her breathless story.

"There's a doctor outside, and his motor car has broken down, and—and he wants help to fix it—"

"How," her uncle demanded, "did you know—?"

But Rosamond went on, unheeding. "It would be cruel to keep him waiting—when he is needed at a sick bed, wouldn't it?"

"He might have one of the horses,"

The young doctor, mounted on one of the big blacks, was a gallant figure. Rosamond never forgot how he looked as he rode that morning out of the big gate and into the sunshine.

When he came back Rosamond was in the garden bending over her lace work.

He took it out of her hands and looked at her keenly. "You ought to be riding the big black horse," he said abruptly. "You will be a perfect shadow maiden if you shut yourself up in this dark old garden."

The color came into Rosamond's pale face until she was as vivid as a flame. "Oh, I hate it here," she said, with her little hands clenched. "I hate it."

"Then why do you stay?" he asked gently.

"Uncle had his heart broken when he was a young man," she said, simply. "He loved a woman who married another man. My father broke my mother's heart—so my uncle does not believe in marriage. He kept me in a convent until I was eighteen, and two years ago we came here. He has always lived in India, and he loves the stone gods."

He brought from there, and put them around the fountain, and I have to look at them every day—"

He took her little trembling hands in his strong grasp.

"Look at me," he commanded, and she raised her eyes and met his steady glance. "Listen—I am going to set the fairy princess free from the enchanted garden. But she must let me do it in my own way—and trust me—will she?"

"Oh, yes," she breathed.

Every day after that he came. Rosamond did not know what power he used to charm her uncle, but the older man grew eager for talks and arguments with the young doctor. They lunched together and dined together, and every day Rosamond sat at the table content to listen, and meet the glance of the steady eyes which seemed to say, always: "Trust me."

And she did trust him, even when one day he went by her with averted head as he passed through the garden on his way to his motor.

At lunch she had the key to the situation. "I have thought sometimes," her uncle said, restlessly, "that the doctor looks at you as if he loves you—it would be a calamity if he should learn to care for you, Rosamond."

Rosamond's own heart beat furiously, but she said carelessly: "He scarcely notices me at all uncle."

The next day the doctor came early to the garden. "I must speak to you before your uncle comes," he said to Rosamond, who had arisen at his approach. "I love you—I want you for my wife—but I don't want you to marry me in order to escape from bondage. You must know love, child, before you leave your garden."

Rosamond's eyes drooped before the adoration in his. "There—there is one man with whom I could live always in my garden," she whispered.

He bent to hear her. "Tell me his name," he commanded, then caught her in his arms as she whispered, "You—"

"I can carry you off like a thief in the night," he said after a rapturous moment. "I shall have to beard the lion in his den, dear."

"He'll never consent," she said, fearfully.

"Wait here for me, my Rose," and he kissed her and went away.

Ten minutes later in the dim study two angry men faced each other.

"If you do not give your consent I shall run away with her," the doctor said steadily. "You are killing her—"

If not physically, at least mentally and spiritually—no girl can live constantly with your old gods and survive."

"Tomorrow she goes back to India with me," said the raging guardian. "You cannot take her away from me. I love her too well to have her hurt."

"Yet you are hurting her. There is no ache like a heart-ache. Surely you know that, sir."

The old man stared as if he had been stung, then covered his face. "I want to save her," he said.

"Then let her love and be loved."

The younger man came over and put his hand on the bent shoulders.

"All that you would have been to the woman you loved, I will be to Rosamond. Can I say more than that?"

The face that was raised to his had in it renunciation, combined with hope. "Make her happy," quavered the old man.

STERN INDICTMENT OF EAGLE

According to Prof. Collett of Indianapolis, the National Bird is Nothing to Admire.

Prof. Collett, of Indianapolis, the great Hoosier naturalist, says that there is a good deal of poetic humbug about the eagle and that there isn't anything noble or inspiring about him. He is not only the biggest thief of all feathered thieves but he is the cruellest.

His special delight seems to be to attack and torture the most innocent of creatures. He will capture a lamb, tear out the eyes of the bleating little thing and watch the agonized movements of his victim with unmistakable gloating.

When the lamb gets so weak that it can't exhibit agony any longer the eagle will catch another in the flock and subject it to the same treatment. One eagle has been known to mutilate as many as 10 lambs in a flock in this way, frightening the ewes and even the most pugnacious rams and keeping them at a distance by his harsh cries and fierce flapping of his wings. The biggest eagle that flies will not attack any animal or thing capable of showing resistance.

It is all bosh about the eagle disdainful to dine on anything it hasn't itself vanquished and killed, declares Prof. Collett. The bald eagle will settle down on and make a meal off as vile carrion as will any buzzard that ever scented a dead horse on the plains.

OLD-TIME REMEDY DARKENS THE HAIR

Gives Color, Lustre to Faded and Gray Hair—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

For generations Sage and Sulphur have been used for hair and scalp troubles. Almost everyone knows the value of such a combination for keeping the hair a good even color, for curing dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair, and for promoting the growth of the hair. Years ago the only way to get a fair tone of the hair was to make use of the sage, which was troublesome, and not always satisfactory. Now, days, almost any up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready-to-use product, skillfully prepared from the best equipped laboratories.

An ideal preparation of this sort is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, in which Sage and Sulphur are combined with other valuable remedies for scalp troubles and thin, weak hair that is losing its color or coming out. After using this remedy for a few days, you will notice the color gradually coming back, your scalp will feel better, the dandruff will soon be gone, and in less than a month's time there will be a wonderful difference in your hair.

Don't neglect your hair if it is full of dandruff, losing its color or coming out. Get a fifty-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, and see what a few days' treatment will do for you. SENATE PASSES PEACE TREATIES

Arbitration Agreements Were Amended Before Final Action.

UP TO ENGLAND AND FRANCE NOW

Admission of Aliens and Monroe Doctrine Not Included—Vote Stood 76 to 3—Peace Cause Loses Nothing.

Washington, Mar. 8.—Stripped of the clause, which it was claimed would invade the constitutional treaty making power of the senate, and with many other limitations added, the general arbitration treaties between the United States and England and France, proposed as forerunners of universal peace, were ratified by the senate by a vote of 76 to 3. The senators who voted against the ratification were: Lorimer of Illinois, Martin of New Jersey, and Reed of Missouri.

President Taft before leaving for his speaking trip to Toledo and Chicago, did not comment upon the senate's action. It is known he had hoped to see the treaties passed unamended. He had said publicly, however, that certain amendments would not be objectionable.

Other Nations Must Decide. Virtually the treaties, by the senate's action "are up in the air," and in their modified form they must be referred to England and France.

By the terms of an amendment proposed by Senator Bacon of Georgia, the senate consented to the ratification of the treaties, with the distinct provision that they do not authorize the submission "to arbitration of any question which affects the admission of aliens into the United States or the admission of aliens to the educational institutions of the several states or the territorial integrity of the several states or of the United States, or concerning the question of the alleged indebtedness or moneyed obligation of any state of the United States, or any question which depends upon or involves the maintenance of the traditional attitude of the United States concerning American questions, commonly described as the Monroe doctrine, or other purely governmental policy."

Refer to The Hague. As amended the treaties provide that all differences, with the exception of the subjects named in the Bacon amendment, which it has not been possible to adjust by diplomacy, and which are justiciable in their nature, shall be submitted to arbitration at The Hague tribunal.

Ambassador Bryce of England did not comment, neither did Jules Jusserand, the ambassador from France, on the action of the senate.

Senator Bacon and his colleagues who forced the modification declared that nothing had been lost in the cause of peace, because 45 nations were now parties to The Hague convention and they spoke, having in mind also the treaties negotiated by Secretary Root.

MALE "SUFFRAGETTE" IS FIRED

Demand for Resignation of Secretary of Des Moines Club Results in Wild Disorder.

Des Moines, Ia., Mar. 8.—Amid wild disorder the Political Equality club here adopted a resolution demanding the resignation of H. G. When Lena Ingham Robinson of the Men's League for Woman Suffrage spoke kindly of Mr. Gue, her words were drowned by the stamping of many women's feet.

Mr. Gue has been giving out unauthorized information, according to the charges made against him, and has been doing other things that the suffragettes declared indicated that he is not working for the interest of the cause.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Maryville People Know How to Save It.

Many Maryville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has cured thousands of kidney sufferers.

The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

Mrs. W. M. Newsan, Chestnut street, Savannah, Mo., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been of more benefit to me than any other kidney remedy I have ever used, and in view of this fact I willingly recommend them. I was caused much suffering from pains in my shoulders, and mornings on arising I felt tired and languid. I was also bothered by difficulty with the kidney secretions. Hearing Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of, I got a box and soon after beginning their use, I was relieved. Another member of my family has also taken this remedy with satisfactory results."

FIVE ARE KILLED IN WABASH WRECK

Seventy-One Injured When Fast Train Jumped Into Ditch.

MORE BODIES STILL IN DEBRIS

Entire Train Rolls Down Thirty-Foot Embankment Into Creek—Broken Rail on Curve Caused Accident.

Danville, Ill., Mar. 8.—Rounding a curve on a 30-foot embankment at Redwood creek bridge, two miles west of West Lebanon, Ind., west-bound Continental Limited train on the Wabash railroad left the rails and rolled down the incline killing five persons and injuring 71. The seven coaches of the train were crushed into a pile at the bottom of the high embankment leading to the creek, and it is feared that more dead may be beneath the crumpled cars.

The train was one hour and 20 minutes late, and was traveling 40 miles an hour when a rail broke on the high embankment at a curve leading to a bridge.

The engine stayed on the track, but seven coaches, including a mail car, baggage and express and day coach, parlor car and three sleepers were hurled from the track, rolling over and over down the steep embankment, landing 80 feet from the track. Three sleepers were empty when the wreck occurred. The parlor car had about 30 persons, some of whom were badly injured. Passengers escaped through windows.

Pinned Under Debris. The day coach was three-fourths full and it presented an awful sight. The interior was a mass of wreckage and it was here where most of the injuries occurred. Many were pinned under the wreckage, but, as the engine did not leave the track, there was no fire in the coaches.

Some were pinned in the wreck for two hours and a half before they were taken out. The front end of the day coach fell into Redwood creek, a small stream five or six feet deep. Late at night the body of an unidentified youth and a woman were still under this car awaiting the coming of a big wrecker, and it is probable others are there also.

The engine ran on to Marshfield, a village three miles distant, and gave the alarm. A flagman who was in the diner escaped with slight injuries and ran back two miles to West Lebanon. Doctors and citizens hurried to the scene in automobiles and afoot and joined the more fortunate of the passengers in rescuing and caring for the injured.

Mail Is Saved. The steel frame mail car suffered least and stood intact among the mass of wreckage. The five clerks escaped with slight bruises and saved nearly all of the mail.

The chef of the dining car was in the kitchen and was hurled through a window and scalded so badly with water from the range that he may die.

The stretch of track where the wreck occurred was relaid with new rails two weeks ago. Rails were torn up for 300 feet.

The wrecking crews worked far into the night to remove the wreckage and recover any person who might be beneath the debris. Snow and ice made the work of clearing the wreckage slow and dangerous.

He also will devote a few hours to an investigation of the $500,000,000 American Telephone and Telegraph company's purchase of Western Union Telegraph stock, with a view to determining if Texas has a wire trust it doesn't need.

NEWS OF SOCIETY AND WOMEN'S CLUBS

I cooked and stewed and fried and baked
Until my back and stomach ached.
I swept and dusted, washed and scrubbed;
I ripped and sewed and made each dud.
Each week my husband's neck I shaved—
This deed a nickel always saved.
But that five cents, I'm grieved to say,
Remains in that man's jeans today.
I saw my flush. By no turn
Could I an honest dollar earn.
Now ere you do condemn me quite,
For stepping from the path of right,
Remember my temptation great.
Perhaps it decreed by fate
That Mrs. Brink should lure me on
This filthy lure to perdition.
She called me daily on the phone;
She kept me always on the run;
Her voice did haunt me in the night,
Until my reason left me quite.
No matter where I went or turned,
I heard this "Got your dollar earned?"
My desperation you can see,
No other plan was left for me.
And so, one night, when all was still,
Except, perhaps, the whippoorwill,
His cash I saw him count with care.
My husband had retired to rest.
No fears disturbed his placid breast,
Then raise the pillow, place it there
His snoring soon showed quite plain
to me.
That he from earthly care was free.
And you can guess what I did next—
It wouldn't do for Sunday's text.
I fixed myself, so I could face
The dreaded Brink at any place.
As for Henry, he can holler.
I relieved him of this silver dollar.
After the experience meeting the hostess served nice refreshments to her guests. A nice sum was realized for the women for their treasury, and all agreed that it was one of the best meetings they have had in the history

The Stone
Gods

By Temple Bailey

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

The Garden of the Stone Gods was set in the midst of a high city, but so high were the walls that surrounded it that it was cut off from the sight of outsiders, and the noise of traffic came faintly to the ears of Rosamond, as she sat day after day by the fountain working fairy webs of lace on a cushion, as she had been laid in a convent far across the seas.

So many years had she dwelt in the convent that she seemed less an American girl than a foreigner, and now that she was buried here in this strange old garden, she seemed to live in a dream life far removed from that of the girls, who, on the other side of the walls, went back and forth on gay modern quests of shopping and motoring, golfing and riding.

Once an airship had whizzed overhead, and the beat of its motors had come down to them faintly.

Rosamond's uncle had looked up into the skies and had said, fiercely,
"Can we never get away from modern horrors?"

But Rosamond had looked up at the big airship, sailing over their heads like a huge silver dragonfly, and then down at the impassible stone gods which surrounded the fountain, and had sighed.

Rosamond hated the stone gods, and she yearned inexpressibly for the life that other girls led.

One day outside the walls she heard a voice singing. It was a man's voice, strong and sweet, and the song was a love song.

In her quiet garden, Rosamond had heard little of love. Her uncle had never married; he hated women.
The song, as it floated out on the spring air, seemed a call to Rosamond to come out and be free.

So she left her lace pillow and ran to the end of the garden, and climbed from the stone bench to the low

Sitting on the top of the wall branches of an old apple tree, and thence to the broad top of the wall, and peeped over.

Beneath her was the man who sang.
His hat was off and he was down on his knees behind a big red motor car.

Rosamond watched him eagerly.
Sitting on the top of the wall she sighed for the things which were for-bidden her. Though the sigh was low, the man beneath looked up. It was as if her desire had drawn his eyes toward her.

His bright eyes shone out as he saw her. "Rosamond," he said, as as rose from the wall in an awful fix. Do you think there's anyone in there who can help me out? I'm a doctor, and I've got to get to a patient as soon as possible."

"Oh," said Rosamond quickly, "I'll see." She ran at once to her uncle's study. There she told her breathless story.

"There's a doctor outside, and his motor car has broken down, and—and he wants help to fix it!"

"How," her uncle demanded, "did you know?"

But Rosamond went on, unheeding. "It would be cruel to keep him waiting—when he is needed at a sick bed, wouldn't it?"

"He might have one of the horses,"
the young doctor, mounted on one of the big blacks, was a gallant figure. Rosamond never forgot how he looked as he rode that morning out of the big gate and into the sunshine.

When he came back Rosamond was in the garden bending over her lace work.

He took it out of her hands and looked at her keenly. "You ought to be riding the big black horse," he said abruptly. "You will be a perfect shadow maiden if you shut your self up in this dark old garden."

The color came into Rosamond's pale face until she was as vivid as a flame. "Oh, I hate it here," she said, with her little hands clenched;
"I hate it!"

"Then why do you stay?" he asked gently.

"Uncle had his heart broken when he was a young man," she said, simply. "He loved a woman who married another man. My father broke my mother's heart—so my uncle does not believe in marriage. He kept me in a convent until I was eighteen, and two years ago we came here.
He has always lived in India, and he loves the stone gods."

He brought from there, and put them around the fountain, and I have to look at them every day."

He took her little trembling hands in his strong grasp.

"Look at me," he commanded, and she raised her eyes and met his steady glance. "Listen—I am going to set the fairy princess free from the enchanted garden. But she must let me do it in my own way—and trust me—I will!"

"Oh, yes," she breathed.

Every day after that he came.
Rosamond did not know what power he used to charm her uncle, but the older man grew eager for talks and arguments with the young doctor.
They lunched together and dined together, and every day Rosamond sat at the table content to listen, and meet the glance of the steady eyes which seemed to say, always: "Trust me."

And she did trust him, even when one day he went by her with averted head as he passed through the garden on his way to his motor.

At lunch she had the key to the situation. "I have thought sometimes," her uncle said, restlessly, "that the doctor looks at you as if he loves you—it would be a calamity if he should learn to care for you, Rosamond."

Rosamond's own heart beat fu-sionally, but she said carelessly: "He scarcely notices me at all, uncle."

The next day the doctor came early to the garden. "I must speak to you before your uncle comes," he said to Rosamond, who had arisen at his approach. "I love you—I want you for my wife—but I don't want you to marry me in order to escape from bondage. You must know love, child, before you leave your garden."

Rosamond's eyes drooped before the adoration in his. "There—there is one way with whom I could live always in my garden," she whispered.

He bent to hear her. "Tell me his name," he commanded, then caught her in his arms as she whispered,
"You—"

"I can carry you off like a thief in the night," he said after a rapturous moment. "I shall have to beard the lion in his den, dear."

"He'll never consent," she said, fearfully.

"Wait here for me, my Rose," and he kissed her and went away.

Ten minutes later in the dim study two angry men faced each other.

"If you do not give your consent I shall run away with her," the doctor said steadily. "You are killing her—if not physically, at least mentally and spiritually—no girl can live constantly with your old gods and survive."

"Tomorrow she goes back to India with me," said the raging guardian.
"You cannot take her away from me. I love her too well to have her hurt."

"Yet you are hurting her. There is no ache like a heart-ache. Surely you know that, sir."

The old man stared as if he had been stung, then covered his face. "I want to save her," he said.

"Then let her love and be loved."
The younger man came over and put his hand on the bent shoulders.

"All that you would have been to the woman you loved, I will be to Rosamond. Can I say more than that?"

The face that was raised to his had in it renunciation, combined with hope. "Make her happy," quavered the old man.

STERN INDICTMENT OF EAGLE

According to Prof. Collett of Indianapolis, the National Bird is Nothing to Admire.

Prof. Collett, of Indianapolis, the great Hoosier naturalist, says that there is a good deal of poetic humbug about the eagle and that there isn't anything noble or inspiring about him.
He is not only the biggest thief of all feathered thieves but he is the cruelest.

His special delight seems to be to attack and torture the most innocent of creatures. He will capture a lamb, tear out the eyes of the bleating little thing and watch the agonized movements of his victim with unmistakable gloating.

When the lamb gets so weak that it can't exhibit agony any longer the eagle will catch another in the flock and subject it to the same treatment.
One eagle has been known to mutilate as many as 10 lambs in a flock in this way, frightening the ewes and even the most pugnacious rams and keeping them at a distance by his harsh cries and fierce flapping of his wings.
The biggest eagle that flies will not attack any animal or thing capable of showing resistance.

It is all bosh about the eagle dis-daining to dine on anything it hasn't itself vanquished and killed, declares Prof. Collett. The bald eagle will settle down on and make a meal of as vile carrion as will any buzzard that eaves scented a dead corpse on the plains.

SENATE PASSES PEACE TREATIES

Arbitration Agreements Were Amended Before Final Action.

UP TO ENGLAND AND FRANCE NOW

Admission of Aliens and Monroe Doctrine Not Included—Vote Stood 76 to 3—Peace Cause Loses Nothing.

Washington, Mar. 8.—Stripped of the clause, which it was claimed would invade the constitutional treaty making power of the senate, and with many other limitations added, the general arbitration treaties between the United States and England and France, proposed as forerunners of universal peace, were ratified by the senate by a vote of 76 to 3. The senators who voted against the ratification were: Lorimer of Illinois, Martin of New Jersey, and Reed of Missouri.

President Taft before leaving for his speaking trip to Toledo and Chicago, did not comment upon the senate's action. It is known he had hoped to see the treaties passed unamended. He had said publicly, however, that certain amendments would not be objectionable.

Other Nations Must Decide. Virtually the treaties, by the senate's action "are up in the air," and in their modified form they must be referred to England and France.

By the terms of an amendment proposed by Senator Bacon of Georgia, the senate consented to the ratification of the treaties, with the distinct provision that they do not authorize the submission to arbitration of any question which affects the admission of aliens into the United States or the admission of aliens to the educational institutions of the several states or of the territorial integrity of the several states or of the United States, or concerning the question of the alleged indebtedness or moneyed obligation of any state of the United States, or any question which depends upon or involves the maintenance of the traditional attitude of the United States concerning American questions, commonly described as the Monroe doctrine, or other purely governmental policy.

Refer to The Hague. As amended the treaties provide that all differences, with the exception of the subjects named in the Bacon amendment, which it has not been possible to adjust by diplomacy, and which are justiciable in their nature, shall be submitted to arbitration at The Hague tribunal.

Ambassador Bryce of England did not comment, neither did Jules Jusserand, the ambassador from France, on the action of the senate. Senator Bacon and his colleagues who forced the modification declared that nothing had been lost in the cause of peace, because 45 nations were now parties to The Hague convention and they spoke, having in mind also the treaties negotiated by Secretary Root.

MALE "SUFFRAGETTE" IS FIRED

Demand for Resignation of Secretary of Des Moines Club Results in Wild Disorder.

Des Moines, Ia., Mar. 8.—Amid wild disorder the Political Equality club here adopted a resolution demanding the resignation of H. G. Gue as secretary of the joint committee in charge of the woman suffrage campaign in Iowa. When Lena Ingham Robinson of the Men's League for Woman Suffrage spoke kindly of Mr. Gue, her words were drowned by the stamping of many women's feet.

Mr. Gue has been giving out unauthorized information, according to the charges made against him, and has been doing other things that the suffragettes declared indicated that he is not working for the interest of the cause.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Maryville People Know How to Save It.

Many Maryville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has cured thousands of kidney sufferers.

The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

Mrs. W. M. Newsan, Chestnut street, Savannah, Mo., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been of more benefit to me than any other kidney remedy I have ever used, and in view of this fact I willingly recommend them. I was caused much suffering from pains in my shoulders, and mornings on arising I felt tired and languid. I was also bothered by difficulty with the kidney secretions. Hearing Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of, I got a box and soon after beginning their use, I was relieved. Another member of my family has also taken this remedy with satisfactory results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

FIVE ARE KILLED IN WABASH WRECK

Seventy-One Injured When Fast Train Jumped Into Ditch.

MORE BODIES STILL IN DEBRIS

Entire Train Rolls Down Thirty-Foot Embankment Into Creek—Broken Rail on Curve Caused Accident.

Danville, Ill., Mar. 8.—Rounding a curve on a 30-foot embankment at Redwood creek bridge, two miles west of West Lebanon, Ind., west-bound Continental Limited train on the Wabash railroad left the rails and rolled down the incline killing five persons and injuring 71. The seven coaches of the train were crushed into a pile at the bottom of the high embankment leading to the creek, and it is feared that more dead may be beneath the crumpled cars.

The train was one hour and 20 minutes late, and was traveling 40 miles an hour when a rail broke on the high embankment at a curve leading to a bridge.

The engine stayed on the track, but seven coaches, including a mail car, baggage and express and day coach, parlor car and three sleepers were hurled from the track, rolling over and over down the steep embankment, landing 80 feet from the track. Three sleepers were empty when the wreck occurred. The parlor car had about 30 persons, some of whom were badly injured. Passengers escaped through windows.

Pinned Under Debris. The day coach was three-fourths full and it presented an awful sight. The interior was a mass of wreckage and it was here where most of the injuries occurred. Many were pinned under the wreckage, but, as the engine did not leave the track, there was no fire in the coaches.

Some were pinned in the wreck for two hours and a half before they were taken out. The front end of the day coach fell into Redwood creek, a small stream five or six feet deep. Late at night the body of an unidentified youth and a woman were still under this car awaiting the coming of a big wrecker, and it is probable others are there also.

The engine ran on to Marshfield, a village three miles distant, and gave the alarm. A flagman who was in the diner escaped with slight injuries and ran back two miles to West Lebanon. Doctors and citizens hurried to the scene in automobiles and afoot and joined the more fortunate of the passengers in rescuing and caring for the injured.

Mail Is Saved. The steel frame mail car suffered least and stood intact among the mass of wreckage. The five clerks escaped with slight bruises and saved nearly all of the mail.

The chef of the dining car was in the kitchen and was hurled through a window and scalded so badly with water from the range that he may die.

The stretch of track where the wreck occurred was relaid with new rails two weeks ago. Rails were torn up for 300 feet.

The wrecking crew worked far into the night to remove the wreckage and recover any person who might be beneath the debris. Snow and ice made the work of clearing the wreckage slow and dangerous.

RECEIVER FOR ORIENT ROAD

St. Louis Line Now Under Jurisdiction of Federal Court.

ALL CONTINUE CONSTRUCTION

St. Louis, Mo., Mar. 8.—Attorney for three corporations, two of which are under the control of A. E. Stilwell, president of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway company, appeared as creditors of that railroad in the federal court here in company with the United States and Mexican trust company, trustee in mortgages, and asked that the railroad be placed in the hands of a receiver.

After a hearing behind closed doors in the office of Judge John C. Follock of the federal court, a receiver was appointed in the person of Edward Dickinson, vice-president and general manager of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railway. The claims of the creditors, amounting to $1,524,000, and the claims on the $25,000,000 of bonds represented by the United States and Mexican Trust company were allowed.

Mexican Revolt a Factor. The "money trust" in New York, the difficulties of railroad in Mexico because of the fighting there, and the demands of Eastern investors for and kept interest on bonds, are given as reasons by A. E. Stilwell, the road, as the cause of receivership. The receivership, however, is not to be delayed, the attorneys say.

Several hours of trial with Judge Follock was stated by the attorneys. The case was agreed upon by the attorneys. Any delay will be seen that rests will be seen court. The case will also be to be re-

LIFE TERM FOR MRS. GENTRY

SHOT HER HUSBAND WHILE ON A SPREE.

Victim Was Prosperous Merchant of Exemplary Habits—Had Tried Poison First.

Oklahoma City, Ok., Mar. 8.—Mrs. Alverta Gentry, charged with the murder of her husband, Thomas J. Gentry, on January 6, was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to life imprisonment. On the night of January 6, Mrs. Gentry, with her brother and affinity, were drinking, according to the testimony in the trial, while the husband stayed at home and took care of the child. The trio went to the house late in the evening.

What occurred there is known only to the three, and none on the witness stand has told exactly who did the shooting. One of them went into the room where Gentry was, and after a quarrel there was a shot fired. Then the three left.

The next day Mrs. Gentry went home, found the body of her husband, and became hysterical. She and her brother and affinity were arrested.

Mrs. Gentry was jointly charged with her brother, Maurice Weitman, and Jesse K. Mackey with conspiring to kill her husband. It was alleged by the state and in the testimony of Mackey, who turned state's evidence, that for several months the three had made unsuccessful attempts to poison Gentry.

The motive was a $3,000 life insurance policy and a desire for each other's society on the part of Mackey and the woman.

Gentry was a prosperous merchant, a 32d degree Mason, Shriner, member of the church and of exemplary habits.

SAYS HE SAW VETERAN STRUCK

Driver of Wagon Telephones Leavenworth Coroner Description of Man Who Slugged Old Soldier.

Leavenworth, Kan., Mar. 8.—R. C. Melton, a driver for the Helmers Manufacturing company, telephoned to the coroner, J. C. Davis, that while he was driving along South Fourth street Tuesday night he saw a man strike J. N. Paden, the Soldiers' home inmate who was found dead in the road Wednesday morning.

Melton said over the telephone that he was taking ill Wednesday morning and did not hear of the affair until now. Melton said he could give a good description of the man who slugged the veteran. The coroner went to Melton's home to talk with him and arrests will be made in a few hours, the coroner says.

Melton said that he drove past Black's pool hall and heard men quarreling at the crossroad. He heard a man exclaim: "You old fool, you are drunk," and then he saw the old veteran knocked to the ground. The assailant ran into Mrs. Black's pool hall, he said, and he drove on thinking that the veteran had only been knocked down.

Mrs. E. Sargent and her mother, Mrs. H. Miller of Bolckow, were guests of Dr. Sargent at H. S. where.

For the American Child.

The national congress of mothers has inaugurated an American child welfare campaign, with the purpose of arousing the whole country to a sense of its duty and responsibility to childhood. To surround the childhood of the whole world with loving, wise care in the impressionable years of life will develop a higher type of citizenship in health, morals and efficiency. The future of America will depend upon the citizens in the making. The national congress of mothers asks in this campaign the co-operation of every governor, every mayor, every father and mother, every church, every school, the press and every organization, whatever its purpose, because the love of childhood is the common tie that unites us in holiest purpose.

The objects of this campaign are the saving of hundreds of thousands of babies' lives through co-operation of mothers and boards of health, and the mothers' clearer knowledge of the babies' needs.

The saving of children from every disease which, with proper parental knowledge and care may be prevented.

The saving of children from entering lives of crime by giving suitable guidance and inspiration to every child.

The saving of the American home through giving to youth true ideals of marriage and education in home-making and child nurture.

The organization of young women for the study of domestic science and home-making.

The methods are the organization of mothers and fathers everywhere for child study to promote child welfare in home, school and state.

The establishment of a department of child hygiene in every board of health.

The perfection and extension of the juvenile court and probation system under proper educational administration.

A child welfare planning commission as a department of every city government.

A department for child welfare in every state government.

A department for child welfare in the national government.

The enlargement and endowment of the parents' educational bureau, conducted now by the national congress of mothers, 806 Loan and Trust building, Washington, D. C., reaching homes in every part of the country.

The city of Philadelphia has led the way by holding in the city hall a child welfare planning conference, arranged by the mayor of the city.

The topics were: "What Philadelphia is Doing for Child Welfare," "What Philadelphia Should Do to Improve Children's Opportunities," "What Private Agencies are Doing." The result was the appointment by the mayor of a child welfare commission, and a letter addressed by the mayor to the mayors of all cities, recommending that a similar conference be held and child welfare commissions appointed in these cities.
